Various activities were undertaken by our students on the occasion of Palkhi between 29th June and 6th July, 2020. To inculcate humanistic and social service values in students, this year, the pandemic changed the scenario. Due to lockdown, student volunteers were unable to work on field. Instead, they worked individually in their respective neighborhoods following COVID protocol and instructions. Activities during the week:

1. Volunteers conducted a survey of families in their neighborhood to find out about the health, income source and dependents in each family.
2. They spread awareness on precautions to stop the spread of coronavirus.
3. Cleanliness drive was carried out by volunteers, also spreading awareness on "No Spitting" and "No to Open Defecation".
4. Fruit tree plantations were done at various places in respective neighborhoods as well as by in college premises.

Fight against COVID -19

During this Pandemic the Management, Principal, staff, alumni and students of the college came to the rescue of migrant workers and daily wage labourers. They contributed for the noble cause of buying groceries and cooking meals for the needy. For 52 days, daily, 700 packets of food were prepared by students and a few parents in the college campus. Under supervision of local police, ration and food packets were distributed. The use of masks, social distancing was strictly adhered to. Department of Chemistry of the College prepared Sanitizer and distributed among Teaching and Non teaching staff of college, police personnel, rickshaw drivers, labors and Court staff. The college and authorities were appreciated by the Lashkar Police and local authorities for this act of kindness.

Poona College cooks food for 600 migrants stuck in the city

Meals prepared daily; students, faculty members and alumni chip in with help

College principal Afshar Shaikh planned the initiative. He stays on the campus the whole day, monitoring the process from dawn till the dusk, also takes complaints.

Thousands of workers from other states have been stranded in the city following the outbreak, struggling to make ends meet. With disinfecting stations, many have taken to intravenous meals — their plight still not being corrected by any definitive aid. At such a time, many Good Samaritans have extended their helping hand. It includes professors along with a group of present and former students from Poona College, with the former not donating their one day's salary to the cause.

It was college principal Afshar Shaikh who came up with the plan — a message regarding which was circulated among professors, students and alumni. It received a generous response as 150 people gathered over the week and set up a functional kitchen on college campus so that they can cook the food every day and serve it to laborers. With everybody handed different tasks, the work commences at 6 am and goes on till the night. So far, they have been feeding 600 stranded migrants every day, stationed at Vaidya wadi, Kinsdawa, Chaudas Nagar, Bhavani Peth, Uvela and Kharsadi laborer camps.

Shaikh told More that the students, prior to the kitchen setup, picked up food from Ravivar Peth for the purpose. However, as several caterers gradually pulled their shutters down, they decided to purchase raw material and cook on the campus. "The food is prepared in a hygienic surrounding, with all necessary precautions. The professors and students work the whole day — managing everything like purchase of material from market yard, vegetables from Khairuli and other requirements from local markets. They also look after the packaging and distribution, ending the cycle with cleaning of utensils so that they can be used the next day," he said.

Putting such a process in place had its own hurdles. Mayuresh Jadhav, a student who is part of the cooking initiative, said they faced problems while moving around. They sought help from police, who told them to apply for digital passes. Now, with six people armed with permissions, can visit the market and also distribute the food.

He added, "Since everything has been done, we had difficulty in looking for cooks until a student's father stepped in. He has been able to prepare tarry food. Apart from that, some alumni members, who are not in Pune, chipped in financial help."

Professor Bhavana Deshpande said that helping people is at the very centre of their college's ethos. "This time, we came together for the nation. We had no specific target when we started the work, but were only aware that this was being done for the underprivileged. An announcement regarding this initiative on college groups received a generous response with hands pouring in quickly and they continue to arrive even today," she said, adding, "Our principal has taken priority to start this initiative to realize. He spends his entire day on campus to ensure smooth functioning and even take complaints."

Survey of School Dropouts

The volunteer students conducted a survey of school dropouts during ___ September, 2019. The neighboring areas of college were chosen for the activity. Students moved in different areas forming groups of four. They talked to the families in detail about the number of members, income source of parents, the number of dropouts if any, etc. Volunteers were surprised to find that in almost every house had a child at home. The reason being that they were either helping parents in earning or staying back to care for the younger siblings while parents were at work. The parents and dropouts were counseled to return to studies and suggested the various Government schemes that could help them achieve this easily.
