Diagnosis 'Surprising'

What it's like to be afflicted with the virus decided that I was not getting any better and surfing the internet for more information about the virus to help me... I experienced a lot of difficulty and anxiety, which went away as I realized that my symptoms weren't any worse

—Shourya Jain

Informing his college friends, he also contacted a doctor in Seattle, advising about his condition. He is essentially preparing for a long stay at Nashik sanatorium. During that time, he is resting and exercising to alleviate his symptoms. He finished reading 10 books such as Jeffrey Archer's Kane and Abel, and fiction The Three-Body Problem. At the time, he developed a habit of breathing through a cloth to avoid 'infecting' others. He said, 'Anxiety slowly went away as my symptoms subsided. My family was supportive and they sent me care packages, from my friends, and of course the usual daily check-ups to ensure I am well, making sure everything is going well. They told me in his blood report everything was normal. The doctor checked his vitals, encouraged me. "Given my circumstances, I'd like to tell you that I am out of the woods," shared Jain, who hopes that his story would help spread awareness about COVID-19 and encourage people who are experiencing symptoms to get themselves tested.

He was tested on the same day he landed from the US, as early as possible for COVID-19, he spent 17 days in isolation at Nashik hospital

Thousands of workers from other states have been stranded in the city following the outbreak, struggling to make ends meet. With diminishing ration, many have taken to infrequent meals — their plight still not being connected by any definitive aid. At such a time, many Good Samaritans have extended their helping hand. It includes professors along with a group of parents and former students from Pooona College, with the former lot donating their one day's salary to the effort.

It was college principal Aftab Anwar Shaikh who came up with the plan — a message regarding which was circulated among professors, students and alumni. It received a generous response as 150 people gathered over the week and set up a functional kitchen on college campus so that they can cook the food every day and serve it to laborers. With everybody handed different tasks, the work commences at 6 am and goes on till the night. So far, they have been cooking 600 standard migrants every day, stationed at Vaski wadi, Korondra, Chaudhari Nagar, Bhavani Peth, Urdhi and Khurali labour camps.

Shaikh told Mirror that the students, prior to the kitchen setup, picked up food from Ravivar Peth for the purpose. However, as several categories gradually pulled their shutters down, they decided to purchase raw material and cook on the campus. "The food is prepared in a hygienic surrounding, with all necessary precautions. The professors and students work the whole day — managing everything like purchase of material from market yard, vegetables from Khasali and other requirements from local markets. They also look after the packaging and distribution, ending the cycle with cleaning of utensils so that they can be used the next day," he said.

Putting such a process in place had its own hassles. Mayuresh Jadhav, a student who is part of the cooking initiative, said they had problems while moving around. They sought help from police, who told them to apply for digital passes. Now, with six people armed with permissions, can visit the market and also distribute the food.

He added, "Since everything has been done, we had difficulty in looking for cooks until a student's father stepped in. He has been able to prepare tasty food. Apart from that, some alumni members, who are not in Pune, chipped in financial help."

Professor Bhavani Deshpande said that helping people is at the very centre of their college's ethos. "This time, we came together for the nation. We had no specific target when we started the work, but were only aware that this was being done for the underprivileged. An announcement regarding this initiative on college groups received a generous response with hands pouring in quickly and they continue to arrive even today," she said, adding, "Our principal has taken plenty of effort for this initiative to realize. He spends his entire day of campus to ensure smooth functioning and even take complaints."

About 11 days later, he was moved to a ward with three other patients diagnosed with COVID-19. Jain was pleased to finally have some company. The patients became friends and began reassuring one another that they would get better. Time passed sluggishly, but after spending over two weeks at the hospital it was time for him to be discharged, which again posed another challenge. "I was apprehensive since I would have to test negative twice to be discharged. My initial symptoms, a dry cough, had not improved much, so I was worried that I was still afflicted with the virus," he admitted.

He was eventually discharged after spending 17 days at Naidu. The elated youth took pictures of his room along with hospital staff before he was shuffled into an ambulance, with a police escort, who dropped him home. "I wouldn't say it was a life-changing experience, but it was definitely a significant one. I can safely say that I'm very glad that it is over. I'm still under home quarantine — but I am out of the woods," shared Jain, who hopes that his story would help spread awareness about COVID-19 and encourage people who are experiencing symptoms to get themselves tested.

The professors and students work the whole day — managing everything like purchase of material from market yard, vegetables from Khazadi and other requirements from local markets. They also look after the packaging and distribution, ending the cycle with clearing of utensils so that they can be used the next day," he said.

Putting such a process in place had its own hurdles. Mayuresh Jadhav, a student who is part of the cooking initiative, said they faced problems while moving around. They sought help from police, who told them to apply for digital passes. Now, with six people armed with permissions, can visit the market and also distribute the food.

He added, "Since everything has been shut, we had difficulty in looking for cooks until a student's father stepped in. He has been able to prepare tasty food. Apart from that, some alumni members, who are not in Pune, chipped in financial help."

Professor Bhavana Deshpande said that helping people is at the very centre of their college's ethos. "This time, we came together for the nation. We had no specific target when we started the work, but were only aware that this was being done for the underprivileged. An announcement regarding this initiative on college groups received a generous response with funds pouring in quickly and they continue to arrive even today," she said, adding, "Our principal has taken plenty of effort for this initiative to realise. He spends his entire day of campus to ensure smooth functioning and even take complaints."

मास्कचे वाटप करीत प्राचार्यांचे प्रबोधन

कॅटोन्मेंट, ता. ८ : कोरोनाची पर्वा न करता गंगाधाम चौकातील सिग्नलवर गरीब मुले फुगे विकताना दिसत असल्याचे छायाचित्र 'सकाळ' (ता. ६) मध्ये प्रसिद्ध झाले होते, तसेच मास्क वापरण्यासाठी त्यांच्यामध्ये जनजागृती करण्याचे आवश्यक असल्याचे यामध्ये नमूद करण्यात आले होते. हे वृत्त वाचून पूना कॉलेजचे प्राचार्य डॉ. आफताब शेख यांनी त्या मुलांचा शोध घेत त्यांना स्वतःच्या हाताने मास्क घालून प्रबोधन केले.

मास्कचा वापर न केल्याने, तसेच सोशल डिस्टिन्सिंग नियमाचे पालन होत नसल्याने कोरोनाचा प्रादुर्भाव वाढत चालला आहे. पोटाची खळगी भरायची, की मास्क विकत घ्यायचे, हा त्यांच्यासमोरचा प्रश्न, या अनुषंगाने छायाचित्र प्रसिद्ध करण्यात आले होते. त्याने प्रेरित होऊन डॉ. शेख यांनी या मुलांचा शोध घेण्यास सुरवात केली. लुल्लानगर चौकात ही मुले व त्यांचे पालक विनामास्क फिरताना त्यांना
